

Nature

Nature It is a lie: nature is not balanced, but tumbling forwards in a damp confusion of forms.

Not so much a comforting friend as a science-fiction monster:

adsorbing all the bullets we shoot at it –

each time getting up and coming back at us;

each time further mutated and more terrifying.